UNITED PARCEL SERVICE

...is making an inroad into package delivery into this area. In fact, the company, which drives the little brown bus, is signing local companies to contracts.

There is nothing wrong with any person sending their packages anyway they want. But local experience in receiving packages is not too hot. Packages are left with anyone in the neighborhood (one instance with two children playing in a yard down the street from the packages destination), and from there the company assumes no responsibility.

But a main item to stop and consider is this: The local Post Office spends $133,179 annually in Hondo for payroll, rent, utilities, contracts, mail delivery, vehicles, cleaner, and local procurement.

How much does the United Parcel Service spend in Hondo? How many people does the company employ in Hondo? The answer is obvious--NONE on both counts.

Every package delivered by the above listed company cuts down on the volume of the local Post Office. This decline in volume, if it continues over a period of time, could mean fewer people employed here.

Certainly, there are problems with the Post Office (most of them would be with offices other than Hondo) but there are bound to be problems with the other company. I, for one, don't want a package of mine delivered to young kids playing down the street just because I am not home.

And I like the business generated in Hondo by the 13 Post Office employees and their families.

THE HUE AND CRY

...for years, or at least since I have lived here, has been Hondo needs more neighborhood parks or recreational playgrounds. And those who advocated such action were right.

So what happens when the City begins preparations to create a playground park on 18th Street? They run into objections to burning the trees and limbs piled up there after clearing the area.

In fact, the City was stopped cold by the Health Department after objections from a few citizens. But the funny thing is: the City was told if the park were located just outside the city limits the Health Department could not stop them.

I am against pollution as much as anyone; and I'm for clean air. But I don't believe that smoke from mesquite trees can do that much harm.

The City is seeking a permit from the State Air Control Board. But if the request is turned down, the taxpayers of Hondo will pay an extra $500-$700 to haul the trees and limbs outside the city limits where they will be burned.

I, for one, think that is a waste of the taxpayers' money.

FORGETFULNESS

...is no excuse, but I do owe the mustache contest winners an apology. Even though they did win pretty cups--they deserve more recognition.

On mustaches grown especially for Museum Day, Tony Mendoza took first place and Lupe Alvarez whipped into second. Elmo Pope took honors in the phase which judged those who have had a mustache forever--or longer.

ceremony, the event will mark a record in the history of the school.

Wilbur Lindeburg honored at meet

Wilbur Lindeburg was named Hondo's Outstanding Young Farmer for 1972 by the Hondo Young Farmer Chapter.

Presentation of the award took place Tuesday night at Hondo City Park when President Glenn Dittmar honored Lindeburg for outstanding agricultural achievements.

Also honored at the Tuesday night meeting was Nick Turner, Hondo senior, who won a Region II second place in an essay contest sponsored by the Medina Valley Soil Conservation District. Harlan Wolff, board member, made the presentation.

Lindeburg has been an active farmer in the Hondo area for 14 years. Following graduation from Sul Ross University in 1958, he worked 600 acres on shares with his father until 1967.

That year, he drilled an irrigation well on his own 206 acre farm and began planting irrigated corn. Today he farms 180 acres of dry land grain sorghum and small grains and 180 acres of irrigated corn. He presently is in the process of purchasing another 157 acres from his father. Lindeburg works all the land himself.

An active member of his community, Wilbur has served in various organizations, and has been an alternate to the ASC Committee for one year and a delegate for three years from Community A.

He is active in the Young Farmers and has served as secretary-treasurer for two years and was elected secretary for the Area VII Young Farmers for one year. He is a lifetime member of the Bethlehem Lutheran Church at Quilb and has served on its Council for six years. He has been an active member of the Medina County Farm Bureau for 15 years and is a member of the Hermann Sons

NATALIA, CASTROVILLE, HONDO

Projects outlined for areas

If favorable comments from agency representatives can be turned into dollars, three Medina County communities are in line for some help on projects vitally important to them.

Judge Jerome Decker, chairman of the Medina

County AACOG Committee, headed a delegation of various agency representatives on a tour of Natalia, Castroville and Hondo on May 11. The group looked at Natalia's need for a sewer plant, Castroville's proposed park project, and Hondo's need for a storm sewer project and its industrial site.

The tour began in Natalia and included: J. S. Martinez, EDA, Doug McEnery, HUD; Alfredo Cervera and Gary Hensarling, both of AACOG; Joe Copeland, Texas Water Quality Board.

In Natalia this group was joined by Mayor B. C. McDonald, Councilman Claud L. Williams and two engineers, Don Bradford and Al Groves.

"At the present," Mayor McDonald said, "Natalia has no sewer system at all and for a city of 1,200 population that is an absolute necessity."

Joe Copeland pointed out that new Public Law 660, which is in conference committee in Congress, will provide a 75 percent grant to incorporated cities without sewer systems and the WQB will cover 15 percent in loans. This would leave 10 percent for the city. Total cost is estimated at $825,000.

"The bright picture on this new bill, when it becomes law," Copeland pointed out, "is that it will include money for acquisition of land, outfall, treatment and collection systems."

McDonald said that the lack of a sewer system is hurting the city industry-wise.

"The padding factory will re-open if we can build a system," he said. "This means some 25-30 jobs, and I know other businesses that can add employees. We have the promise of a brand-new subdivision east of town when and if we get a sewer system."

It was agreed that Natalia would submit application under the new Public Law 660 and work through that channel for a sewer system.

Following the meeting, the group went on a tour which included the city water

Young Child Week vital

Hondo's Mayor George Brucks has joined the folks over the rest of the Nation in observing "The Week of the Young Child" by signing a proclamation to that effect.

During this period (May 14-20), the Texas Association for the Education of Young Children is urging a concerted effort on the part of all members to plan programs of interest in schools and at related meetings to focus the attention of the public on the young child in order to:

... Stimulate dialogue on the needs of the young child.

... Encourage home-school-community interaction in working for the well-being of young children.

... Acquaint the public with the variety of services that are available in each community for day care, group educational programs, health and primary education.

... Emphasize the critical shortage of all kinds of services for young children.

... Demonstrate the opportunities for careers in working with young children.

... Focus attention on what is being done in the name of young children in national, state and local legislation.

Letters from the mailbox

Mr. Lawrence:

I strongly recommend "INCOME TAX" preparation regulations on the Tax preparation industry, that will minimize, if not completely halt, abuses within the industry.

The findings of the Internal Revenue Service's "Crack Down" during this past season on fraudulent tax returns are appalling.

Government regulations must be enacted to set up standards of competence and ethics for tax preparers, and set minimum standards of financial stability for tax preparers or their firms.

Specifically, I was very pleased to see that the president of our company assumed a leading role before a Congressional subcommittee in Washington, D.C., as he recommended a system of registration for all tax preparers who prepare returns for a fee. I understand that the national organization of public accountants, other professional groups, as well as many congressional leaders, have endorsed our stand.

H. & R. Block has always felt that the best system of taxation must, by its nature, be somewhat complex in order to be equitable for all taxpayers. Persons seeking help with their tax returns should be able to rely with confidence upon the tax preparation industry.

Yours truly,
John Schubert

Good tax news for students

Students who work this summer may be entitled to exemption from income tax withholding, R. L. Phinney, IRS District Director for southern Texas, said today.

Students who did not owe any tax last year and who expect to owe none this year should use a Withholding Exemption Certificate, Form W-4E, to claim the exemption. This would eliminate the need to file a tax return next year unless there has been tax withholding and the student wishes to recover it.

For 1972 a single person who makes $2,050 or less owes no tax. This is based on the $1,300 low income allowance and a personal exemption of $750. A single taxpayer over 65 can earn wages up to $2,800 without incurring a tax liability, Phinney explained.

Exemption from tax withholding began in 1970 and has an annual cycle beginning each May 1. Therefore, any exemption certificates filed for 1971 expired on May 1, and new ones are required for the current year.

Besides students, anyone else who qualifies can fill out the form and give it to his employer to claim exemption from income tax withholding on his wages.

Meat prices make news

Congressman Kazen in Washington

By U.S. Rep. Chick Kazen

In my last report, I quoted a letter I had sent to the consumer advisor to the president of a Washington supermarket chain. The advisor, Mrs. Esther Peterson, had signed newspaper advertisements urging consumers to avoid expensive beef by using other foods. The high price of meat, her letter said, began at the source.

I wrote to criticize her analysis of meat prices, pointing out that ranchers were getting no increase in their share of the consumer's dollar, even though their costs had risen in recent years. I suggested that last year's drought placed a heavy burden on ranchers and farmers, forcing many out of business. I said that if food prices were to be controlled by the government, we should look at the profit margins of the many middlemen along the way from producer to consumer.

"A Powerful Case" Mrs. Peterson replied while I was in the district during the Easter recess.

"It was most helpful to receive your factual letter of March 23. You make a powerful case for the rancher and really point up the fact that these constant increases in the price of beef are the product of complex causes.

"But we do not think the 'why' is the issue as far as the consumer is concerned. As a retailer, we have a responsibility to help our customers do the best they can with their food dollars... The forthcoming investigations will undoubtedly put more light on the reasons for the price increases. Meanwhile we will continue to do the best we can to help our customers with their day-to-day problems. Thank you for writing."

Argument with a Lady I have some reluctance to continue an argument with a lady, but I find it significant that an executive of a major retail firm now thinks the "why" to customers and claiming a share in the credit for a mild decline in beef prices. I do not know the technique of supermarket selling, but I wonder whether her company may have been influenced by competition. Another food chain announced it would not raise beef prices for a month, and would cut them if possible.

I too am very concerned about the plight of the consumer. Retail prices are high, but I do not think the producers are basically to blame. It is useful that ongoing inquiries by House committees and the Price Council are examining the many elements in the farmer-market-consumer process that enter into ultimate retail prices.

Responsibility

The national administration has said that its controls system would curb inflation and produce many new jobs. Significant progress has not been made. The cost of living is still high, and in many parts of the country unemployment remains a major problem.

We in the congress or other governmental positions have responsibilities, too. For my part, I have been scrutinizing spending proposals, and I recently voted to hold down some elements of our foreign aid program. I have always contended that our nation must be strong, but that domestic economic strength ranks with military power as essential.

Ag experiment station reports brush control

Rough, thorny Texas rangeland presents its own problems to ranchers who are trying to control brush with ground-spraying equipment.

"Conditions often prevent aerial spraying, yet very little ground spraying is done because of the lack of equipment tailored to withstand the rigors of rangeland," says Harold Wiedemann, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station engineer at Lubbock.

He is part of a Texas A&M University brush control team of scientists who are studying and testing different and safer methods of improving rangeland conditions.

One of Wiedemann's jobs is to develop a practical ground-spraying system suitable for rough, remote range country. This would be a follow-up procedure to control sprout growth of mesquite, whitebrush, weeds and other range plants after large scale brush control.

"Flat tires have been our most serious problem," says the engineer. "But they have been significantly reduced by using a special rear tractor tire with a steel inert tread." This type tire is widely used in the logging industry, but appears suitable for rangeland.

"A set of logger tires, used in conjunction with our research studies at the Spur Headquarter Ranch in Dickens County, has been in continuous operation for more than a year, with only one flat," the researcher reports.

Flats on front tractor tires have been reduced by using old high-ply truck tires as outertreads. The truck tire's bead and small portion of the sidewall were removed to aid the installation. Airplane or solid laminated tires will also work.

A bulldozer blade mounted on the tractor has been found to be very useful in moving logs and knocking over trees which block the tractor's path while spraying.

The effect of advertising done by local merchants in a community is rarely fully appreciated.

This is the opinion of a distinguished banker, who has helped to launch several multi-million-dollar businesses. Speaking to a group of university students on the factors affecting community economic development, the banker considered the more prosperous communities in his state. One by one, he isolated the forces which distinguished the progressive communities from the "dead" cities. Without exception, the banker listed as the most important factor in each community the local newspaper.

He, in fact, named the local newspaper before the bank and local government.

"The other institutions eventually follow the newspaper," he said.

The spirit of progress, the signs of movement and life, in a community are vividly reflected in a community newspaper. This reflection, this image of a community, is so powerful that a person who has never been near a particular city can assess its spirit by perusing the community newspaper from a thousand miles away.

Ironically, the editor has only a small part in creating the image on which the assessment is made. The credit is due primarily to local advertisers. The local retailers make a local newspaper. They give the editor his independence, strength, and courage to move forward.

Conservation experts offer timely advice

With recent rains, farmers and ranchers report crops in good condition throughout the Medina Valley Soil Conservation District.

In many areas, rain fell at high velocity causing some cropland erosion. Conservationists suggest that now is a good time to walk out fields that are idle from the grain program; install properly grassed waterways, terraces, and construct diversion terraces that will supply future protection.

"Farmers and ranchers who have fertilized their fields of coastal bermuda and other improved pastureland are in good shape. Those who have not fertilized should do so immediately. Fertilizer is a must for high yields on all cropland planted to grass. Each dollar of fertilizer will return great profits in the amount of forage produced. More forage means more pounds of beef, and more beef means extra dollars for the landowner."

A farm pond has been constructed on the Suehs Ranch Estate about four miles north of Castroville. This pond will cover several surface acres when full, and have a depth of over 30 feet. It will furnish adequate water for livestock and give better distribution of grazing land.

Col. and Mrs. A. J. McKenzie of Devine have completed construction of a wildlife pond, which will be furnishing water for wildlife. Completed last week, the pond already impounds over eight feet of water. Critical area shaping was completed on acreage seeded to NK-37 grass and fertilized.

Many acres in the MVSC District need shaping and fertilization before seeding to a good grass such as NK-37, K, R, bluestem, or coastal bermuda. SCS technicians will give technical assistance in this practice.

works. There they saw where the area has fallen in due to underground caves, with one spot having a hole an estimated 75 feet deep.

Group members met for lunch with Castroville City Council, headed by Mayor Sammy Tschirhart, and discussed the proposed $300,000 park which the city has on the drawing board.

After lunch at which they were joined by AACOG Director Al Notzen and AACOG Open Space Director Tylor Probasco, they toured the park area, a beautiful, wooded site along the Medina River and banked by hills on the west side. Castroville leaders have a complete design plan made by the Parks and Wildlife Department. "Such a park could be beneficial to Castroville as well as the entire county," J. S. Martinez of EDA said.

Martinez told Castroville officials that money for the park could come from EDA Impact Funds due to the fact it would provide jobs, aid the city in attracting industry and visitors, and encouraged them to submit an application to EDA.

HONDO MEETING
At the Hondo meeting that afternoon, Mayor George Brucks, City Manager Fritz Leinweber, Councilman Pete Pedroza and Chamber of Commerce Manager Harry Filleman heard the discussion on the storm sewer.

When the storm sewer plans were drawn in 1968, the cost was estimated at $504,000. But City Engineer Glenn Gallbreath of Lodal and Bain said that today the same plans would probably cost $600,000.

HUB representative Doug

McEnery said under the present system HUD could go on a 50-50 basis, with the remainder having to be raised through a bond issue. Those present expressed their belief that the city could pass a bond issue to support such a project, which would build a system that would encompass both the north and south sides of town.

McEnery said that in the present HUD plans such an underground storm sewer would take a higher priority than it did under the 1968 classification system.

Mayor George Brucks asked about the possibility of expanding the city's sewer system and plant and was told by Copeland that the possibility existed that Hondo's sewer system can fall under the provisions of the new Public Law 660 also.

Martinez said it would be logical to explore the possibility of the sewer system being aided by EDA since it could mean additional jobs and an inducement for new industries.

At that time Mayor Brucks brought up the new railroad spur the city is building into the Airbase area for U. S. Bonded Padding Co. and wanted to know if EDA could help with that expense. Martinez' answer brought an immediate roar of laughter from those in attendance: "I'm afraid that project would be too small for EDA."

Brucks then asked: "Then how large a project do you want us to submit for that industrial area? We can develop plans that will call for more."

The Mayor then took Martinez and McEnery on a tour of the industrial site and the city. Applications will be submitted on both projects, the underground storm sewer and the industrial park and railroad spur.

SS Representative to be in Hondo Monday

To social security beneficiaries the 3rd of the month is important. That's the day their monthly benefit checks usually arrive, according to Roy L. Swift, manager of the San Antonio social security office.

Swift urged every beneficiary to notify the social security office as soon as possible when moving. If a change of address notice is given early enough in the month, the next check should arrive at the new address on time. It also makes good sense to advise the post office of the move in case social security doesn't have enough time to change the address before the check is mailed to the former address.

For further information, see your social security representative who will be in Hondo at the City Hall, at 8:45 a.m., Monday, May 22nd.

That's all she wrote

by Edna McDade

One of the most attractively fern-fished houses in Hondo is that of LLOYD and MARY ANN HERMES, 2102 Ave. M. See if you don't agree as you check the street-level rock-enclosed window boxes of swaying green sword fern. Pleasing to the eye, viewed from any angle.

While on matters horticultural, the explosion of yellow retama blooms all around our town merits an appreciative accolade -- before their black seed pods provoke protests from lawn keepers and their electric mowers.

If you are interested in knowing what HILLIARD MUMME was doing 25 years ago come this December, check page 814 of that issue (1947) of the National Geographic Magazine. He was one of a group of eight area cattle raisers pictured in a story "Carnival in San Antonio" written by the late Mason Sutherland whose remains lie buried in Oakwood Cemetery.

Others in the group (identified for me by DOUGLAS RIFF) included his father, the late ROBERT RIFF, and Ben DeJoire, Jr. of the Rio Medina community.

According to the author, the Medina Countians were among "stockmen who gathered weekly at the Union Stockyards to discuss three favorite topics: the sorry state of world affairs, prevailing live-stock prices and the hardships experienced by old-time drovers."

ELSIE (Mrs. Robert) RIFF has the old magazine among her treasured keepsakes. The story and its color pictures revived for me memories of Fiesta time during the years I lived in SA before it went too Big-City for my less metropolitan taste.

The "madding crowd's ignoble strife" I don't enjoy. Maybe Thomas Gray (Elegy etc.) was an early 1700's ancestor? Anyway, I prefer the wide open spaces, without the hoopla of Fiesta time.

While I was in Moehring's Hdwe. last week to purchase some epoxy glue which I needed to sort of hold things together, several young husbands were debating the merits of assorted gifts recommended for Mothers Day. As DUB SITRE walked in, one of his buddies called out, "Hey, what are you getting the Missus?" Said Dub, "Box of chocolates probably. That way I can get in on it too." I didn't stay to find out his final decision but, by this time, Mrs. S knows for sure.

IDA (Mrs. P.C.) JAGGE isn't taking her usual long-distance tour this summer. Instead she is "trying to get even with a backache which developed on last year's tour."

Her self-medication? Having her ranch home on Tarpley Road modernized with aluminum windows, central air and heat, and all the other comforts it missed out on when it was first built. "I figured," said Ida, "if I can't get rid of the back misery, I might as well make it more comfortable for the owner!"

JOHNNY BRITSCH, this year's game-winning baseball coach at IOLA (TX) HIGH SCHOOL, is back home for the summer or part of it. He began his coaching career here with Hondo's Pony Leaguers and says appreciatively, "We had a grand time those days. And I think perhaps I learned as much from them as I tried to teach them! Take a bow, Ponies of that era."

In another few weeks, if plans keep on apace, Hondo's Housing Authority should be putting in high gear the required paper work preliminary to making low cost housing available for those eligible to avail themselves of the opportunity.

Let's hope they don't encounter a Chicago problem which recently made the daily papers and concerned "a house so dilapidated that $8000 had to be spent on it before it could be condemned under existing regulations."

When a conversation turned to the subject of left-handed compliments, ROSALIE (Mrs. Ray) JONES claimed credit for what she termed "a doozy."

Her father, Mr. EMIL BOHMFALK, once told her with some paternal justification, "You are so hardheaded, I do believe you'd argue with a fence post if you ever got the chance!"

Rosie might never have had the chance for, to this good day, fence posts on the Bohmfalk farm are still holding their own.

Interest being sought in junior rifle club

Beating the drums for interest in a Junior Rifle Club, Leslie Vance, Junior Club Organizer for the Medina County Rifle Club, has sought a building to house a rifle range.

Vance made his proposal to the Hondo City Council at its May 9 meeting and was advised that the building can become available just as soon as sufficient interest is demonstrated in the formation of a junior rifle club.

If sufficient interest is demonstrated, final arrangements will be made and all interested shooters will be informed of the time and place for the courses. The first meeting before the first class will be open for all parents and shooters for a short introductory session concerning course contents, safety measures, required conduct, questions / answers, and other administrative details of the basic courses.

Before a junior rifle club can be formed, a Basic Rifle Marksmanship Course must be attended and successfully completed by each participant, who can be male or female 12 to 18 years of age. The Basic Rifle Marksmanship Course is intended to provide a sound foundation in the fundamentals of safe gun handling and good marksmanship principles. Also included in this basic course is the Texas Parks and Wildlife Hunter's Safety Course (developed by the National Rifle Association) which is designed to give the knowledge and encourage the care that can avoid gun accidents in the hunting field.

These courses consist of lectures, demonstrations, and supervised shooting for five class meetings of 2 1/2 hours each. After the courses are completed, interested shooters can form a junior rifle club to compete between their own members and other junior clubs in the area.

Before any final determination by either the City Council or the Medina County Rifle Club can be made concerning the desired building, enough interest must be demonstrated by interested junior shooters. All interested shooters between the age of 12 and 18 are requested to furnish name, date of birth, mailing address, and name of parent or guardian to: MEDINA COUNTY RIFLE CLUB % Leslie A. Vance, P. O. Box 70, Hondo, Texas 78861.

How you can help flood victims

A plan to help low-income families, who are victims of the recent floods in San Marcos, is announced by the St. Vincent De Paul Society of St. John's Church, Hondo, according to Fr. Emmet Carolan, assistant pastor.

Needed urgently are furniture, lots of bedding, mattresses, pillows, sheets, blankets, and such floor covering as rugs, any size, linoleum mats, and cash donations.

State Representative John Poerner visited San Marcos and reports that some 200 homes were flooded, leaving the residents in desperate need of help for the second time in two years. The area in that city is similar to that in Hondo's east side section which suffered so much damage during the August floods of last year.

The local Society is sponsoring a county-wide drive to help. Announcements of the appeal are being broadcast by KRME, said station manager Jim Fiddle.

At this time, no clothing, shoes or food is being collected here for the San Marcos project. Persons wishing to help with cash donations or any of the items designated above are urged to deliver such to St. John's Church or to call the church office 6-2236 to ask for pick-up.

"We hope to get the relief items to San Marcos by Saturday," said Fr. Carolan, as spokesman for the Vincent De Paul Society, "and we will appreciate all the help we can get. Some of the needy victims are still trying to pay off loans they received in the disaster of two years ago."
